JESUS HAS GIVEN YOU HIS NAME

It's time to pause, relax, breathe, and rest a little.

It's time to empty your mind of racing thoughts, worries, and a never-ending to-do list and to fill your heart and your mind with color and creativity and peace.

While you're doing this, it's also time to ask Jesus one of the most important questions you'll ever ask:

"Jesus, who do you say I am?"

Then listen for his response. With each new stroke of color, listen to him speak to you about who he's created you to be. New. Growing. Free. Friend.

With each new page, you'll find a new perspective on your identity in Jesus. Let this identity sink in as you color and reflect. The process will leave you with a vibrant work of art...

...and something far more valuable: his namesake.

You're Becoming

NEW

*It gets old being the old you, doesn't it?
Stuck in patterns, letting others down,
rinse and repeat.*

*Here's what I offer instead:
a new you with new patterns.
My patterns.*

I promise they'll never get old.

Inspired by 2 Corinthians 5:17

You're MY Work

You're so busy working that it's easy to think
I'm one more thing to do.
But I do not need your works.
Instead, you're my work,
and I love my work.
Let's labor together for love
and sacrifice and the good fight.

Inspired by Ephesians 2:10
